Pioneer Lady Passes to Her Rest, 71st Year

took Part in Covered Wagon Migration in Nebraska—Came to Pincher District 1903

The death occurred on August 15 in Coleman hospital of Mrs. August the Maria Elizabeth Kroesing, aged 70 years, 11 months 18 days, after an illness since April 1. The funeral took place on August 22, the service being conducted by Rev. W. Wachlin, Lutheran minister of Pincher Creek, and burial in Coleman union cemetery.

She was born in Magdeburg, Germany, August 31, 1861, and came to Eastern Nebraska when a young woman, where she was married, and with her husband migrated to Western Nebraska in a covered wagon. They resided there for 19 years, coming to Pincher Creek district in 1903. Mr. Kroesing arrived the same day the Frank rockslide occurred, the family arriving about a week later.

With her husband she came to Coleman in 1920, spending her later years with her daughter, Mrs. Cyr. Her husband died about 12 years ago. Those who mourn her loss are three sons, Charlie, of Moscow, Idaho; Ernest and John of Pincher Creek, and three daughters, Mrs. A. Hammer, Coleman; Mrs. V. Cyr, Coleman, and Mrs. W. G. Scott, Coaldale. There were also three other sons, two of whom were buried in Nebraska, and one at Pincher.

The funeral was attended by members of the family and many late friends, service being held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. V. Cyr. The casket was covered with floral tributes from the family.

The pall bearers were J. Filafilo, R. Burns, M. Stegler, H. Sawdoun, Fred Dionne, J. Plante.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. V. Cyr and family of the late Mrs. Kroesing desire to thank the doctors and hospital staff for their kind services during the illness of their mother, those who kindly loaned cars for the funeral, and Mr. A. E. Ferguson, of the Crows Nest Undertaking Co.

Bill Mitchell, who has a pigeon loft at the rear of the fire hall, has sworn vengeance on the cat tribe. Visiting his loft early in the morning, he found a big cat had already killed one fine homing pigeon, and had badly mauled a second. He attacked the cat with a stick, but it managed to get away. "But I'll get it," said Bill, with a fiery look in his eyes which boded ill for any cat found prowling in the vicinity of his pigeons. Since then Bill has given away his pigeons.

Snapshots of Old-Timers

FRANK G. GRAHAM

In 1903 Coleman was in the making, the townsite being surveyed in that year. One of its earliest citizens was Frank G. Graham, proprietor of the Cabinet Cigar Store. He has always been a booster for Coleman, and will likely be boosting it when he meets St. Peter, for with an abundant supply of energy and ability to do things, he is an enterprising citizen, one of the "salt of the earth."

A native of New Brunswick, he came west to Calgary in 1896, for several years was living at Vancouver and in the interior of British Columbia, being settled at Nelson prior to coming to the Crows Nest Pass. He opened his first business venture here on Christmas Day 1903, and has experienced the usual share of ups and downs incidental to the life of a western mining town.

Always active in municipal affairs, he has at various times been councillor, school trustee and fire chief. In 1913 he was appointed postmaster, the duties of which are now carried on by his son Frank. A review of this old-timer would not be complete without reference to his good wife, who passed away two or three years ago, and to whose memory there is no better memorial than the furnishings of the Anglican church, for it was through her efforts that it was so beautifully appointed.

A town is no better than the people who compose its population, and if all were of the same industrious quality, Coleman would be "humdinger."

PERJURY CASE REMANDED TO HIGHER COURT

A preliminary hearing on a charge of perjury against Dimitris Oleahko preferred by Harry Seaba, took place before Magistrate J. W. Gresham in Coleman on August 20. M. H. Moscovitch of Lethbridge defended Oleahko, and R. F. Barnes appeared for Seaba.

The case arose out of an assault charge brought against Seaba in connection with the fracas which took place in Coleman opera house on May 17, locally known as the free fight which settled the strike here. Oleahko contending that Seaba was the aggressor. The preliminary hearing of this charge was heard some weeks ago, and Seaba was committed for trial to the district court at Macleod.

Since that the action for perjury was instituted Magistrate Gresham also decided to send this case to the higher court.

Help Our Youth Now.

Within recent weeks daily newspapers throughout the Dominion have printed columns, and sometimes solid pages, of names of young men and women who have graduated from universities and colleges or passed the final examinations of their Normal, technical, collegiate, high school or business college courses. The total number of these young people in Canada runs away up in the thousands every year, and last year and again this year has been no exception.

In the case of the University and college graduates they have, with a few exceptions who will go on to post-graduate work, come to the end of one phase of life. The same is true of the vast majority of those who have completed Normal, technical, collegiate, high school, and business college courses. A certain number of these will go to university, or take up some special course of further training, but, generally speaking, these students have ended the days of their scholastic preparation for life.

In a word, this great army of youth, who in their teens and early twenties have been studying and undergoing training, has completed this first stage in life's journey. They have been preparing for work. They are now ready to go to work, and are eager to begin, bubbling over with enthusiasm and keyed up with energy for the work ahead, and stirred with ideas and ambitions of what they expect and desire to accomplish.

And right at the outset they are met with rebuff, with crushing disappointment. In an overwhelming majority of cases there is no work for them to do, no positions open for them to fill, no opportunities knocking at the door to which they can respond. True, there is the odd case where through family or other influence a position is made available, but, by and large, inability to secure work is the experience of this army of today's youth, trained, eager and ready to work. They find themselves in a world which offers them little or no opportunity to use their hard won knowledge and training.

Herein lies the greatest tragedy of present day conditions, herein is to be found the greatest menace not only to the future lives and usefulness of these young people, but to the future of our country. At the close of one period in their lives, they are confronted with a blank wall; they cannot retrace their steps, they cannot go forward. What are they to do except "mark time" for the present, and, while marking time, what is to be effect on their enthusiasms, their energy and initiative, their ambitions,—in a word, on their character? They must fill in the time in some fashion. During this trying period of enforced idleness, are they going to develop habits of shiftlessness, slip into vice ways, weaken morally? Is the clear, straight thinking developed in their student days to become twisted, and the strong arguments deeply imbedded in the wisdom and experience of the past which have been instilled in them to be uprooted?

These are questions to be answered not only by present-day youth, but by the more adult generation. The elders of today have survived other depressions, other panics and crises, and they know that the evils of today will be overcome and pass away. They have confidence that there are just as good, even better days ahead; that the future holds just as great opportunities, greater in fact, than the past, and that these opportunities will come to the youth of today as they came to them. But youth, lacking the experience, is not sure of this. It has had its golden visions of immediate activity and usefulness in the world of work dimmed, if not shattered. They are hurt and bewildered. They are not at all sure of the future, and are in a questioning state of mind. They do not know where to turn. Parents and friends are absorbed in their own difficulties, worried and apt to be impatient.

The elders of this generation require to develop an understanding of their children's problems and present outlook on life, to reveal to them a deep sympathy, and to cultivate a divine patience with them. Parents can, perhaps, do more for their children today to make or break the future lives of their children than was possibly the case in other years.

And what is true of the parents is likewise true of those who are the leaders of and responsible for the life and activities of the communities in which they live. Youth must be served, and if active remunerative employment for a time cannot be provided as an outlet for their energies and enthusiasms, then other provision must be made.

Students of the problem confronting youth at present suggest two forms of activity for them in the absence of other employment. One, that in each and every community adequate means be found of providing for youth, to engage the interest of and provide an outlet for the energies of youth,—in all departments of sport, in properly supervised dances, in the organization of orchestras, glee clubs, amateur theatricals, debating societies, in libraries containing books on inventions, explorations, science, etc.

Second, in the arousing and developing of an interest among young people in the welfare of the community in which they live. If remunerative occupation cannot be provided for the youth of the community, give them the opportunity to serve themselves through some form of recreation and to serve others and the community at large until the opportunity to realize their ambitions returns. The elders of the community can develop such programmes,—there is always a need, and probably more so now than ever before,—and by the application of the enthusiasm and energy of youth they can be carried through. It will keep them out of mischief, and give them something to think about besides their own problems. Instead of becoming narrow, selfish and bitter, such an interest will broaden their outlook and such activities will revitalize their lives. They will discover much to be thankful for; that in many ways they are not so badly off after all, hope will be revived, confidence restored, new, and possibly better conditions aroused.

Suffered A Severe Attack Of Dysentery

Mr. P. L. D. Moulard, Vernon, B.C., writes:—"Last Summer I suffered from a severe attack of dysentery. I tried nearly everything on the market, without getting any relief, until a friend told me to use Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which I did, and I got immediate relief. Now I am making it a rule to always keep a bottle of it in my medicine chest. "Wild Strawberry is sure relief for dysentery, colic and diarrhoea, but I always use I get the genuine 'Dr. Fowler's.'"

The Coming Motor Car

New Models Show Trend Toward Stream-Line Appearance

The automobiles of the future will look more and more like one another, we are told in an informative article by T. R. Elliott in Maclean's Magazine. This will not surprise the class observer of this year's models for a tendency in this direction is already apparent. However cars may differ in other respects—in materials, appointments or power—their appearance will conform to the stream-line. They will adopt, Mr. Elliott says, a shape very much like that of a teardrop rolling down the cheek. It is the shape of the raindrop, the bird and the fish. Man, having experimented has found that nature was right, after all. The great advantage of the teardrop shape is in the saving of power. It seems that at 50 miles an hour the teardrop uses about the same power as the 20 used by the ordinary sedan. It means a saving not only in gasoline but in engine construction. Automobiles should tend to become cheaper and more economical to operate. There are other improvements along the highway that leads to the "perfect" car. One of them is suspected to be the super-balloon tire. Others have to do with materials, lubrication and engine design. The last word in automobiles has not yet been uttered. The industry has an interesting future.

WHOLE FAMILY WITH INDIGESTION

A mother of four writes:—"Myself and family of four all seemed to suffer from acidity, pains in the back, and other forms of indigestion. I suffered whatever I ate. But since we have been taking Kruschen (for the last three months) we can eat anything, and all enjoy our food much more. We never have a trace of acidity or pain now. I think it is wonderful! It has no upsetting results. Whether we may have to go without, we cannot give up Kruschen." (Mrs.) M.K. Kruschen. Salts which neutralize acid, takes all the torment out of it, and gently expels it from the system. And by stimulating the natural process of elimination to prevent regular action, Kruschen will prevent this harmful acid from ever accumulating again. After that you'll experience no more misery after meals. Kruschen will keep your inside clean and healthy. Pure and invigorated blood will be sent coursing to every part of your body. You'll feel wonderfully energetic and well. As healthy and hearty as it is humanly possible to feel.

Food Prices Decline

Cost Of Food Half Of What It Was In 1921

Cost of food today over the store counter is considerably less than half what it was in 1921, and has shown a marked decline since 1929, a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics shows.

The index numbers of the Dominion Bureau of the retail prices of food 11 years ago stood at 1411; in 1929 it was 101, slightly over the base of 100 in 1926, and in July this year it was 614, a drop of 39.6 points in three years.

The index number of clothing, fuel and rents has also declined, and on the whole the change in the cost of living is shown by a drop in the total index from 99.9 in 1929 to 80.8 last month.

Practically every item of food shows reductions, including meats, butter, milk, bread, sugar, coffee and tea. Vinegar is a lone stand-out, showing little change. It was 7.8 cents per pint in 1929. Today it is 7.5 cents.

Dragged Down By Asthma. The man or woman who is continually subject to asthma is unfitted for his or her life's work. Strength departs and energy is taken away until life becomes a dreary existence. And yet this is remedied. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has brought a great change to an army of sufferers. It relieves the restricted air tubes and guards against future trouble. Try it.

Using Canadian Ports

Canadian ports are being used by Canadian shippers to a greater extent than possibly ever before, and the routing of the Dominion's grain to the United Kingdom via the all-Canada route is increasing. Formerly, United States ports got the bulk of Canadian grain for shipment overseas, but this situation has been changed in the past year.

Bidding For Tourist Trade

Canada Can Draw Business By Advertising Pleasure Resorts

Tourists in Canada, 1931, spent $297,238,000. Canadian tourists abroad spent $113,292,000. Canada's net debt to tourists was $165,946,000. That's a debt that's all to the good in these days of so many bad ones, and Ontario and Quebec which got the major portion of it are to be congratulated on the successful harvest of their advertising. Canada's balance in tourist trade is so much greater than her balance of trade in commodities that catering to tourists looks almost like a Wallingford scheme for the rapid accumulation of wealth.

Saskatchewan is the latest province to make a bid for the trade of travellers. Previous to the opening of the Prince Albert National Park, Saskatchewan was stricken with a poverty of playgrounds, and had only the sight of the waving seas to offer as an inducement to vacationists. However, she has boomed the name of the park by catering to two motorcades from the south, one from Montana and the other from the states as far south as Colorado adjacent to U.S. highway 85. The second party included the governors of North Dakota, South Dakota and Wyoming, and it is slated as an annual affair to arouse and maintain interest in what is termed "the international highway of three nations," with Prince Albert National Park at one end and Mexico at the other.

Revenue From Radio

Receipts From Radio Licenses Exceed One Million Dollars

Receipts from radio receiving licenses this fiscal year already exceed $1,000,000. This means 500,000 owners of sets have taken out licenses. It is said to be about half of those owning sets. It had been planned to prosecute those who did not take out licenses voluntarily but it has been decided to first make a house to house canvass. Commander C. P. Edwards will have charge of organizing this Canada-wide undertaking.

Erect Higher Buildings

Permission Granted To Construct Buildings in London To Height Of 100 Feet

An upward limit in the height of buildings permitted to be constructed in London has been allowed by the County Council. Henceforth structures may rise to a height of 100 feet. The previous limit was 80 feet. Risk of fire has been the principal factor in limiting the upward extent of London's buildings, but under present methods of steel construction the risk is considerably lessened. It is doubtful, however, whether the sub-soil would bear structures of skyscraper proportions, though heights of 200 feet are anticipated.

CANADIAN WOMEN FIND DUSTING DISTASTEFUL

Dust cloths going into discard; Unpleasant to use; a bother to Wash

APPLEFORD WONDER PAPER HAS GREAT VOCUE

Of all household tasks, that of dusting is the least appealing to the majority of women.

However, this condition, like many another connected with housework, is undergoing radical change. In a great many Canadian homes the women are discarding dust cloths entirely, and are using Appleford Wonder Paper instead, because it actually dusts—as it cleans—as it polishes, doing a better and much quicker job than the old dust cloth ever did.

This new, and extremely modern Wonder Paper, is made from clean rags and soft paper pulp, treated in a scientific way with a high-grade furniture polish, and absorbs dirt instead of spreading it.

Appleford Wonder Paper comes in handy-size packages, twenty-five large sheets for twenty-five cents. You crumple a sheet into a soft wad and go over the surface requiring attention. Then when one side is soiled or worn, turn the Wonder Paper inside out. After you have given a quick and lasting finish to furniture and woodwork, you can still use Wonder Paper on the floors, if you wish.

And when you are through, there's no old duster to shake out or wash. Throw the soiled Wonder Paper away and you've completed the most tiresome part of housework in half the time and with half the effort.

Wonder Paper is made by the makers of the famous PARASANI Heavy Waxed Paper in the Green Box.

Special Offer Most grocery, hardware and department stores are Appleford Wonder Paper stock. If yours hasn't, we'll be pleased to supply you from the factory. Just fill in and mail this coupon.

Canada Now Importing Raisins From Australia

Supply Formerly Came From United States and Spain

"Have you had your iron today?" That is what the raisins people used to shout at us some years ago, and those of us who heeded, and thought we needed iron, promptly went out and bought raisins that came from Spain or the U.S.A.

It is different today. We've begun to mix Imperialism (not the old sort) with our iron, have started to buy our raisins from South Africa and Australia. Australia, indeed, is now sending us more raisins than we get from across the line.

Under the new trade treaty importation of Australian raisins has increased from 4,099,008 pounds in the first six months of 1931 to 4,493,309 the same period of 1932. In the half year of 1931 we imported $2,917,732 pounds from the United States, but the import has declined this year to $422,603.

The last three months demonstrate very clearly the efforts which Australia is making to capture our raisin trade. The amount imported from Australia has been 4,291,690 pounds as compared with 2,239,352 from the United States. Incidentally, all of us who are preaching the need for and benefits of trade within the Empire can help along the good work by "buying British."—Ottawa Journal.

Mystery V.C. Holder

How Commander Agar Won Coveted Decoration Was Never Revealed

Commander Agar, who is with H.M.S. Scarborough in the West Indies, and who was gravely hurt as the result of a soapstone crash that drowned two American passengers, was known as the mystery V.C., no details having been given of the act that won him the coveted bronze cross after the Great War was well over. But when the Bolsheviks placed 15,000 on Commander Agar's head just after their cruiser "Olig" was torpedoed off Kronstadt people put two and two together. Commander Agar made his raid on the "Olig" in a small motor-boat, ran the gauntlet of Russian destroyers and heavy fortress guns, repaired damages to his craft while under fire, and made off with sails commandeered from a Russian fishing boat.

Old Coin Survives Fire

Was Inbedded In Silver Of Others That Melted

A coin 1,133 years old, dated A.D. 799, has been found at Cornhill, Illinois, among the possessions of Jake Bittner. Mrs. Bittner's father was a coin collector, but when his home burned the coins were melted. The metal was thrown in a trunk. Dug out recently with an eye toward selling the silver metal, the man revealed one coin imbedded in the silver. Made of copper, it had not melted.

Definite Advance Made In Furthering Cause Of Inter-Empire Trade

Ottawa, Ont.—These agreements . . . constitute a definite advance towards closer empire economic association . . . we are therefore encouraged to proceed along the course that we have chosen, but this position beginning must not blind us to the fact that it is but the beginning—we have laid only the foundation—and that if this scheme of closer empire association is to endure and bring to each one of us the benefits we hope for, further action must be taken at a not too distant date.

And in these words, Premier Bennett brought the imperial economic conference to a close.

Twelve agreements, accomplishments of the conference, were signed. Seven were between the United Kingdom on the one hand and Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Newfoundland, Southern Rhodesia on the other. The Irish Free State had two agreements, one with Canada, the other with Africa. Canada had further agreements with South Africa and Southern Rhodesia. South Africa had one with New Zealand.

For Canada, the most important is the Anglo-Canadian agreement. The agreement marks a new departure. Under it, the United Kingdom not only widens the existing field of preference, she brings within the scope food-stuffs which for nearly a hundred years have been free of duty.

Return concessions by Canada not only establish new or increased margins of British preference. They contemplate tariffs on a new basis. Henceforth the United Kingdom producer will be given in Canada full opportunity of reasonable competition "on the basis of the relative cost of economical and efficient production."

Embodied in the agreement is the following clause designed to prevent Russian dumping.

"This agreement is made on the express condition that, if either government is satisfied that any preference hereby granted in respect of any particular class of commodities are likely to be frustrated in whole or in part by reason of the creation or maintenance directly or indirectly of prices for such class of commodities through state action on the part of any foreign country, that government hereby declares that it will use the powers which it now has or will hereafter take to prohibit the entry from such foreign country directly or indirectly of such commodities into its country for such time as may be necessary to make effective and to maintain the preference hereby granted."

New Shotgun Device

Youthful Inventor Claims Weapon Can Fire 400 Shots a Minute

Chicago.—A 20-year-old junior college student is inventor of a device which he claims will convert an ordinary shotgun into a death-dealing device capable of shooting its customary ammunition at the rate of 400 shots a minute—and has pledged himself to keep it from gangsters and criminals.

The inventor, Charles A. Michal of suburban Elmhurst, said the device can easily be attached to any shotgun. It has been submitted to local police departments for thorough tests.

Delegates Pay Tribute To Ottawa People For Hospitality Shown

Ottawa, Ont.—Tributes to the people of Ottawa for the hospitality they have extended to the delegations attending the Imperial Conference and to all the efforts put forward to make the sojourn of the conference pleasant and comfortable were voiced at the luncheon tendered by the mayor and corporation of the city to the delegates. The beauties of Ottawa, its natural environment and its dignified public buildings, had impressed the visitors.

Sean T. O'Kelly's remarks were also in lighter vein. He felt, he said, that he dare not refuse to speak at the luncheon because the Free State was "so seldom heard, and gets very little publicity."

Braving Ocean In Canoe

Two Scandinavian Sailors Leave Montreal For Vancouver

Montreal, Que.—Braving the dangers of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, two experienced Scandinavian sailors left here August 16 in an 18-foot canoe en route to Vancouver via Cape Horn. The navigators, Helge Borup, 42, Danish sailor and newspaper editor, and Harold T. Jensen, 38, a veteran ship's officer, expect to complete the journey in about two years.

The craft, an Ontario product, is equipped with a sail, outrigger and rudder and will carry the two men, who weigh about 200 pounds each, together with 800 pounds of equipment made up of a tent, clothing, fishing lines, camping utensils and modern navigation instruments.

The two plan to sail down the St. Lawrence River, through the gulf and along the coast of the Maritime provinces and New England states to Boston and New York, where stops will be made. Their itinerary will then take them to Key West and thence to Havana, Cuba.

From the Pacific Coast they intend entraining to the Thunder Bay district for an inland water voyage back to Montreal.

Jensen navigated the Amazon River alone from its source to the sea in 1924.

Lancaster Is Acquitted

British Flyer Is Freed On a Charge Of Murder

Miami, Fla.—Captain W. N. Lancaster, British flyer, was freed on a charge of murdering Haden Clarke, young writer and his rival in love. Wednesday, August 17, by a verdict which precipitated a court room demonstration that threatened to go beyond the control of bailiffs.

The 12-man jury deliberated four hours and 48 minutes before acquitting him on one complete ballot. He had been on trial since August 2 in one of the most sensational hearings in the history of South Florida—a trial that brought out the secret love lives of himself, Haden Clarke, and Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix in full detail.

Sun Spots and Weather

Astronomer Royal Of Great Britain Believes There Is No Connection

Vancouver, B.C.—"So far as I know sun spots have nothing to do with the weather. If anyone tells you they have do not believe them," declared Sir Frank Dyson, astronomer royal of Great Britain and director of Greenwich observatory, in an address here. Discussing the observatory, Sir Frank stated that the clock at Greenwich was the standard chronometer of the world and does not vary more than one-hundredth of a second per day.

"Little Theatre Work

Edmonton, Alberta.—The University of Alberta has received a $30,000 grant from the Carnegie Foundation of the United States. The sum was given to the Department of Extension and will be used over a period of three years for development of Little Theatre work and Music and Art.

Dominion Made Films

Motion Picture Studio To Be Established At Vancouver

Vancouver, B.C.—Outgrowth of motion picture industry discussions at the Imperial Economic Conference in Ottawa and prospects of a British quota on Dominion-made films, brought initial plans for a motion picture studio in Vancouver. A Vancouver syndicate placed an order with an architect and an engineer to prepare plans and had offered distribution of the studio and financing is being completed.

Announcement of the plans was made by Captain J. W. Johns, head of the syndicate. He said investigations have been underway several months, and because of encouraging reports emanating from the Ottawa gathering the syndicate had decided to take immediate steps to establish a studio, produce films and extend distribution throughout the Empire, as well as in Canada. United States producers had offered distribution facilities, he said.

By means of a quota, the British government he said, would enforce all theatres in Great Britain and the colonial empire, the dominions excepted, to show 15 per cent. of the film footage was of British make. This scale would increase, he believed.

"A picture made in the British Empire to obtain admission to Great Britain and her colonies has to be registered with the British Board of Trade and have certificates that no less than 75 per cent. of the payroll has been paid to British subjects, that the author was a British subject and the picture made in the British Empire by a British incorporated company with the majority of directors British subjects," he said.

This regulation has more or less scared Hollywood producers from starting their own studios in the British Empire. Therefore they are looking towards making an alliance with a Canadian organization. The object is for the making of pictures in Canada, British in character, but up to Hollywood standards of photography and technique."

German Political Situation

Hittler Says He Will Not Use Storm Troops To Gain Power

Berlin, Germany.—Chancellor Franz von Papen has received assurances Adolf Hitler will not use storm troops to seize political power, but in any event he will not hesitate to suppress any revolt by force of arms.

The chancellor made this assertion in an interview in which he vigorously reiterated Germany's demand for equality in armaments with other nations, declaring the fatherland no longer could submit to being treated a second-class nation.

Although the cabinet situation still is in a state of flux and there is no telling who will rule Germany after the new Reichstag has been called into session late this month, the chancellor appeared serenely confident his government would stay in power.

Asked whether he expected to be chancellor next Christmas he said: "We shall be in office for a long time."

To Test New Airplane

Berlin, Germany.—An aeroplane which will retract the steps of aviation to study the flight of birds is awaiting a trial at Tempelhof Aerodrome. It is a wing construction approximating the wings of a seagull and its aim is to secure greater stability in the air. Hans Richter, pioneer glider flyer, is the designer.

CALLS FOR MORE TREES

Hon. James F. Bryant, as Chairman of the Saskatchewan Commission on Conservation, is advising the farmers of that province that the present is the time to go in for a tree planting campaign. He lays particular stress upon the use of Caragana hedges to stop soil drifting.

Retrenchment Programme

Manitoba Government Plans Drastic Cut In Expenditures

Winnipeg, Man.—Government members of the Manitoba legislature met in the first caucus since the election, to pass on a retrenchment programme planned by the government of Premier John Bracken, involving a saving of somewhere between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

Previously, Hon. D. G. McKenzie, Minister of Agriculture and Hydro, had announced for purposes of economy his department will not send an exhibit to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto this winter, this move will result in a saving of some $5,000.

Falling revenues since the estimates were submitted in the legislature last spring have made necessary drastic curtailments in Manitoba government expenditures. For instance, more than 3,000 fewer passenger cars are being operated in Greater Winnipeg this year, and 12,600 fewer passenger cars for the whole province, according to figures on motor vehicle licenses obtained by the Manitoba tax commission.

Mutual Preferences

Committee On Foreign Relations Makes Recommendations

Ottawa, Ont.—The Imperial Conference committee on foreign relations is understood to include in its report recommendations that: (1) No treaty obligations into which the empire countries might enter in the future should be allowed to interfere with any mutual preferences which the governments of the commonwealth might agree upon.

(2) The empire countries will free themselves from any existing treaties as might interfere with mutual preferences which may be agreed upon.

The United Kingdom has trade pacts giving most favored nation treatment to Soviet Russia and Argentina. No treaties, though, are specified in the report.

Display Trophies

Glasgow, Scotland.—A permanent display of the trophies won by the late Sir Thomas Lipton has been opened at the Glasgow art galleries. Prominent in the display is the "World's Best Loss" by American admirers. Another section contains personal gifts from King Edward and Queen Alexandra and the Empress Eugenie.

Ottawa Agreement Will Greatly Benefit Farmers Of The West

Mounties May Police B.C.

Would Bring Whole Of Western Canada Under Federal Force

Victoria, B.C.—Consideration of turning over to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police the policing of British Columbia is under consideration of the department of the attorney-general. It was definitely learned here. The development is one of the results of the Kidd report on British Columbia finances. It was stated.

The arrangement proposed provides the abolition of the British Columbia Provincial police and 39 municipal police forces, all of which cost $1,700,000 annually. City police forces of Vancouver and Victoria would be continued as at present.

Completion of an agreement for policing British Columbia by the Royal Canadian Mounted would bring the whole of western Canada under the federal force. Saskatchewan turned over its policing to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police almost four years ago, while Alberta and Manitoba provincial forces were absorbed this spring.

Estate Will Be Auctioned

Large Property Of Earl Of Egmont To Be Sold

London, England.—Calverton estate, a property in Buckinghamshire belonging to the Earl of Egmont, is to be sold by auction. It was announced recently.

The youthful "Rancher Earl," who succeeded to the title on the death of his father four months ago, has returned to Canada and is living on the Alberta ranch at Fridley, where "Mr. Percival" farmed until he became the 10th earl in 1929.

Calverton estate covers about 461 acres, with a small residence, three farms, 32 country cottages and some valuable building land.

Finns Leave For Russia

Hundred From Ontario Confident Soviet Will Supply Work

Halifax, N.S.—Sporting red sashes attached to their clothing by a small star with a sickle and hammer device, 100 Finns from Ontario set sail on the S.S. Kangasheim to work in Soviet Russia.

With few exceptions they declared themselves confident work would be provided for all as soon as they arrived in the land of the Soviets.

Winnipeg, Man.—The future for the farmers of western Canada looks distinctly brighter as a result of the agreement reached at Ottawa between Canada and the United Kingdom, according to views expressed here. The pact would put millions of dollars into the pockets of western cattlemen and give a decided stimulus to the grain and dairy producers, leading agrarians stated.

Col. H. A. Millinen of Marquette, Man., a veteran in the fight for free importation of Canadian cattle into the United Kingdom, exclaimed: "Splendid! We have waited 50 years for this. An agreement which puts the cattle industry of Canada on an even plane with that of Ireland is worth millions of dollars to this country. It will be a great advantage to agriculture throughout the whole of Canada."

Increased preference on dairy products received the unanimous approval of leading dairy producers. Substantial stimulus had been given to the industry. It was believed, which would be reflected in improved prices to the producer immediately. Hon. G. D. McKenzie, provincial minister of agriculture, said that "in view of the enormous market available and Canada's small imports in the past, the gain should be considerable."

J. I. McFarland, general manager of the Canadian wheat pool, central selling agency, believed that a preference on Canadian wheat entering the British market would be an excellent thing for the producer of western Canada.

A similar view was expressed by J. B. Murray, general manager of the Alberta Pacific Grain Company, Ltd. "The Dominion Government has earned the thanks of the majority of farmers and business men in western Canada," Mr. Murray said. "The free entry of Canadian wheat into the wheat-importing market of the world will bring better prices to the western farmer."

Export Flour Unloaded

First Shipment Arrives At Churchill For Overseas

Churchill, Man.—In the presence of several Canadian National Railway officials the first Canadian flour ever shipped out of the north was unloaded from a special train in the new freight shed.

The shipment comprised 31 cars from Robin Hood Mills, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw, destined overseas.

Professor Piccard Reaches Highest Altitude In Record Balloon Trip

Cavallaro Di Monzanaro, Italy.—

Auguste Piccard and Max Cosyns came down to earth Thursday afternoon, August 18, having gazed on the world from the greatest altitude ever attained by man—more than 10 miles.

When they landed they were somewhat shaky, very tired, and exceedingly modest. Swarms of persons, including government officials who came by aeroplane, descended on them, but neither Piccard nor Cosyns was in a mood to accept applause.

Professor Piccard made certain the balloon which had taken him into the stratosphere was well cared for and that his delicate scientific instruments, which may have recorded evidence to indicate whether the universe is dying or immortal, were safe.

Then he telephoned his wife, who until recently had been reluctant about allowing him to repeat the dangers he encountered on his first stratosphere flight last year. After that he revealed a little about his amazing experience.

He said that three hours after they took off Thursday morning, August 18, from Dubendorf, across the Alps in Switzerland, they reached their maximum height. From that vantage point the world was a strange looking place. Landmarks were indistinct and maps were of little value.

Only the large lakes below him served to indicate to Professor Piccard exactly what part of the earth he was over. He recognized Lake Garda, 12 miles northwest of this village, and decided to land. It took him more than two hours to bring down his balloon.

"We are very well satisfied with our flight," the professor said, while hundreds of gaping farmers stood about staring at the men who had been far above the rain and the clouds in a little aluminum ball attached to a balloon.

Their altitude was 16,700 metres, or 54,776 feet. On the professor's first flight last year the top height was 51,793 feet.

Professor Piccard, 48 years old, lean, his head crowned by a shaggy mass of hair, and his 25-year-old assistant, took off at 5:06 o'clock Thursday morning, August 18, (11:06 p.m. Wednesday, August 17, eastern standard time). They were in the air about 12 hours.

When the balloon had been deflated after the landing here and safely folded up, and the instruments had been taken care of, the professor and his assistant motored to Desenzano.

It was almost nightfall when they left. The every move had been watched by the crowds of stocky peasants to whom this was a most extraordinary matter, for the peasants are not newspaper readers and they had no idea what the queer globular carriage represented.

Along about nightfall the balloon and aluminum ball were loaded into the air force truck and hauled to the aviation school in Desenzano, where they were placed in a hangar. Neither Piccard nor Cosyns would leave the spot until their apparatus had been stowed away.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

It is the intention to publish at intervals brief sketches of old-timers and others who have taken a prominent part in the development of community life. The progress of any large or small centre of population depends to considerable extent on the enterprise of its citizens. Some may achieve wealth, others may not, but yet contribute more to the welfare of their community than mere money can buy. The example of industry and enterprise is a splendid tonic, and it is in honor of the old-timers, who have shared in the ups-and-downs of their "old home town," that The Journal will present these sketches.

"Bennett has decreed that the workers must starve" is the nonsensical statement on a notice tacked to a telephone pole, calling a meeting of unemployed to hear a delegate speak on the Workers Economic Conference recently held at Ottawa, and to whom the Premier gave a straightforward answer to their impossible "demands." In line with revolutionary appeals to passion, the employment of force when reason fails, and general warfare on Capitalism, irresponsible agitators continue to confuse the minds of workers and instead of appealing to reason, and base their oratory on villification of everyone and everything not in accordance with their revolutionary teachings. Here is a paragraph which apostles of the golden land of the Soviets will find difficulty in refuting: "Russian refugees escape across the Dniester into Roumania and tell a sad story of existence under the Soviet. Kulaks who were self-supporting land-owners found their land taken in exchange for hunger, suffering and pitiless tyranny. They declare they would prefer Tsarism to Communism—thus finding a new way to say how unlovely they think Communism is."

The support of Bellevue's annual exhibition is commended to people of the Pass towns. Nothing daunted by untoward events of the past year, the executive of the Horticultural Society determined to carry on as usual. Bellevue's friendly attitude in co-operating with Coleman on various occasions can best be recognized by as many as possible attending the exhibition on Labor Day.

Two men addressed a meeting of unemployed last Saturday. One said he was an Englishman, and was sorry for it; the other said he was a Canadian born citizen, but that was nothing to be proud of. These men, without pride of citizenship, dissatisfied with everything, whose only remedy for improvement is revolution, stated they intended to attempt to organize Coleman miners into the Unity League. Surely events of the past eighteen months have shown the futility of the Unity League as far as Coleman is concerned. It has wrecked the Mine Workers Union of Canada, and has kept workers in neighboring towns on strike. It has not accomplished a useful thing for Canadian Workers, and is not recognized by Canadian labor organizations.

"Schooldays, Schooldays; dear old golden school days!" Children do not think of them in such terms while in their school years, but the thought recurs to parents as they prepare for the re-opening after midsummer holidays. New books, new clothes, at betimes in the morning—it quickens activity around the household after taking it easy for two months. Most parents indulge in reflection on their own school days as they see the children rush off in the mornings. Many pleasant memories are recalled, of when life carried very few responsibilities and was almost as carefree as the winds.

"Clarence Darrow: A Great Actor," is the title of an article published in "National Spotlight," written by Louis Adamic, a working man who became an intellectual. The following excerpt is of interest:

"Darrow's renown as a labor attorney grew, but gradually, it appears to one who studies his life and writings, he seemed to become appressed by a sense of futility. He seemed to say in effect: 'It's no use; the underdog, poor thing, is the underdog because of what he is. No one can help him. These labor leaders and politicians exploit him even more than the employers.' He became an active cynic, a pessimist, a fatalitarian.

In 1905, speaking before a gathering of leaders, he said that all Socialists were merely "kidding" themselves. "Why," he said, "you could not get a Socialist government in this country that could stand together 24 hours. . . . Every blooming one of you is an orator, and a boss, and you would not be satisfied to let anybody else have anything to do with it. It is like the French Revolution. When I read the story, the thing that impressed me was not that they cut off the heads of the noblemen, but that they wound up the job by cutting off each other's heads."

Pay your school taxes and save the discount; it is a worth-while saving.

C. L. D. L. MEETING

A meeting held on Saturday night near the railroad tracks in the interests of the Workers' Unity League was addressed by G. Poole, reported to be secretary of the Canadian Labor Defense League, and two others who were stated to have been delegates to the Workers' Economic Conference at Ottawa in August.

Poole's address consisted mainly of an appeal to Coleman workers to strike and to back up the efforts of Blairmore and Bellevue mine workers. They were appealed to to join the Mine Workers' Union of Canada from which they broke away following their repudiation of "Red" leadership in May.

Very little support was accorded the speakers, the meeting opening with about 25 present, which increased to approximately 100 at the conclusion of the meeting, which lasted for an hour. It closed with the singing of "The Red Flag."

WORLD HAPPENINGS
BRIEFLY TOLD

The will of the late King C. Gillette, safety razor manufacturer, naming his widow as the sole beneficiary was probated at Los Angeles. Attorneys said the estate would be in excess of $1,000,000.

Believed to be the last survivor of the Sixth Regiment, which took part in the Riel Rebellion at Cut Knife Creek and Fish Creek in 1885, Sergeant-Major Uesbe Beaudoin, 66, is dead at Lachine, Que.

Two thousand five hundred dollars for an individual prize for the best sample of wheat shown at the World's Grain Exhibition next year at Regina, is the largest of its kind ever offered.

Final payment to farmers for all wheat pooled during the 1931-32 season has been made by the Alberta wheat pool, it was announced by R. D. Furbush, general manager. Total payment amounted approximately to $200,000.

Preserving Fish By
Brine-Freezing Method

Process Used in Scotland Has Been Gratifying Success

Brine-freezing, a new method of preserving fish caught in the sea, the result of research work carried out at the Torry Research Station, Aberdeen, is regarded as a gratifying success and an exhibition of cod, sole, halibut, plaice and rock salmon frozen by this process was given recently at the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, London.

The fish had been caught by the research vessel "City of Edinburgh" weeks previously. Some of them were fried at the department and guests enjoyed an early luncheon of fried fish at the government's expense.

This new process will, it is claimed, revolutionize the methods of preserving fish. Trawlers will brine-freeze fish as they are caught instead of, as at present, storing them in ice while the trawler is at sea. A Lumley, superintendent of the Torry Station, said that one of the disadvantages of fish frozen under old methods had been that it was not ultimately nice to eat.

In the brine-freezing process the fish are dipped into a solution of sodium chloride (or brine) carried on board in a tank at a temperature of five degrees Fahrenheit. Then they are stored at a temperature of five degrees, and experiments have shown that fish so treated can be kept in perfect condition for three months.

The cost of installing the new plant on board is about $8,500, but it is claimed there would be a real saving, because of the avoidance of loss on fish caught early in the voyage. A Billingsgate fish merchant says the brine-frozen fish was almost as good as freshly caught fish.

An Important Industry

Demand For Lobsters From Canadian Waters Is Growing

The lovely lobster has climbed to a high place of importance among Canadian industries and offers one of the brightest spots on the Dominion's business horizon, according to a bulletin just released by the Department of Immigration and Colonization of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

"Both in the United States and Great Britain, demand for lobsters from Canadian waters has been growing and the industry is in a healthy state," the bulletin stated. "Lobsters now are second only to salmon as the most important fishing enterprise in Canada, the salmon industry being centered largely in British Columbia and the lobsters coming chiefly from the Atlantic coast near Halifax, N.S."

The bulletin told of a new record for a single shipment of canned lobsters which recently was made to Great Britain. The shipment contained 10,000 cases and was valued at $200,000.

Novel Use For 'Planes

Japanese Army Machines Search For Active Volcano

Japanese army 'planes were put to the novel use of scouting for an active volcano. Reports came to Harbin that an extinct volcano in the Hinggan range to the west had suddenly become active. Rumbblings were reported as heard in a place 25 miles away from Harbin. The 'planes failed to locate any evidence of eruption. Russian scientists reported 13 volcanoes in the Hinggan range back in the 18th century.

Eliminating Noise

Milk Concern In New York Is Doing Its Bit

A large milk concern serving New York City has actively entered upon a noise abatement campaign. By equipping its horses with rubber cushions for their shoes, and providing its drivers' milk bottle baskets with rubber shock-absorbers, it plans to lessen the din of early morning milk deliveries.

A necropolis is a burial ground, usually of great size, or one found near the site of an ancient city.

A Big Cargo

Large Vessel Carries Enough Wheat To Feed 12,350,000 Men

An old salt sat on the bank of the new Welland Canal. Beside him sat the statistician. Talk veered uncertainly from one subject to another. Then it reached record cargoes. "And the statistician got busy."

When the "Lemoyne" opened the canal, she carried the world's greatest cargo of grain, he said. "She has already carried 571,885 bushels of wheat at one load, and that cargo would make 12,350,000 two-pound loaves of bread. If you laid those loaves end to end they would reach 2,350 miles for the distance from the spot where the wheat was produced to the sea. It would take 210 farms of 10 acres to grow the cargo and 286,000-ton railroad cars, or a train 2½ miles long to carry it."

"Well," said the old salt, tapping his pipe reflectively against the snubbing post, "that's quite a load. I remember when the first steamboat—'Therion'—pulled out of Port Arthur with her record cargo. It was 30,000 bushels."

Britain Perfects Super-Tanks

Much Stronger and More Efficient Than Old Type

Great Britain was the first nation to use "tanks" in warfare. Since then these instruments of destruction have been greatly improved so that England leads the world in such weapons. The latest tanks are covered with armour plate much stronger than before and capable of resisting even the new German super-bullet, which blasts its way through the armour of the old-type tanks. They have also perfected a more mobile light tank capable of negotiating ditches, streams, trenches and other gaps much wider than its predecessors could have negotiated.

What It Stood For

A tiny butcher shop recently opened in a Connecticut town; wedged into a small store room, bears the impressive firm name of Williams & Gilchrist, Ltd. Asked what the Ltd. stood for, "stands for limited," Mr. Gilchrist said. "You see, we're limited to meats and nothing but meats."

"What is a paradox, Mister?"

"Two wharfs side by side, sir."

Utilize White Whales

Hides May Be Used For Manufacture Of Fancy Leather Goods

The two white whales brought to Winnipeg from Hudson Bay by the Industrial Development Board of Manitoba have been rendered at the St. Boniface abattoirs and they provided 35 per cent. of their total weight in excellent quality oil, bearing a slight odor, and being only slightly stronger than olive oil. The board hopes to develop a new industry on the northern water body.

The hides are now in process of tanning which will take some time, but leather workers believe it will prove suitable for the manufacture of ladies' handbags, and other fancy leather goods. Minute study of the outer skin reveals a mottled effect with alternating patches of smooth and rough skin. Blubber almost two inches thick adheres to the hide, but comes off readily.

A Token Of Gratitude

German Soldier Pays Tribute To Humanity Of American Doughboy

A little silver coin bracelet to commemorate the humanity of an unknown "doughboy" who saved the life of his enemy was recently deposited in America's war museum at West Point.

August Ulrich, late of the Kaiser's armies, sent the trinket from his death-bed and with it this note:

"Before I will have to depart, I intend to fulfill the promise I gave to a soldier of the American army, who saved my life in 1918."

"I therefore lay in your hands a bracelet made out of old German coins as a sign of appreciation for a nation whose soldiers even in war treated their enemies with great consideration."

Artificial Lighting For Office Buildings

Would Provide Uniform Glow Which Is Easier On Eyes

Some authorities on illumination contend that the office buildings of the future will be built without windows and will employ artificial ventilation, also artificial lighting throughout, in an effort to secure a uniform glow which will not tire the eyes. An instrument has been invented which tests accurately the effect of various lights on the eyes.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 28

GIFTS FOR BUILDING THE TABERNACLE

Golden Text: "Honor Jehovah with thy substance, and with the first-fruits of all thine increase." —Proverbs 3:9.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 84:1, 2, 3-12.

Explanations and Comments

The Call For Contributions For the Sanctuary, Exodus 35:4-20.—Most assembled the people and addressed them, probably from a raised platform. He reminded them that it was God's desire to have a sanctuary where He might meet them and they might offer Him their worship. He called for voluntary contributions of materials and labor for the sanctuary and its equipment and for the vestments of the priests. There was no restriction; the givers of gifts must be "willing-hearted," and the laborers "wise-hearted." The people listened and quietly went back to their tents.

"You might have wondered whether they would return, since so little had been said to touch their emotions and arouse their enthusiasm. How different this seems to the methods in use today to extract money from reluctant hands."

"An Old Subscription List," verses 21-29.—This heading is the happy title which Dr. Alexander MacLaren gives to his exposition of this chapter. "Let each man do according as he hath prospered in his heart," wrote Paul to the Corinthians; "not grudgingly or of necessity, for God loveth a cheerful giver." The men and women on this old subscription list fulfilled that injunction of Paul's. They came—a great crowd of willing givers, "every one whose heart stirred him up, and every one whom his spirit had made willing," laden with gifts needed for the building of God's house and for "the holy garments," the garments consecrated for use in the sanctuary.

"The world asks, 'How much does he give?' Christ asks, 'Why does he give?'" —John R. Mott.
They were refugees. They were living in the wilderness, where there were no stores or workshops. Materials for the tabernacle must come from their private hoards. From Exodus 12:35, 36 we learn that the children of Israel on leaving Egypt asked of the Egyptians "jewels of silver and jewels of gold, and raiment, and Jehovah gave the people favor in sight of the Egyptians, so that they let them have what they asked. And they despoiled the Egyptians." These treasures now the people poured out for Jehovah's use. Every gift was a sacrifice. It could not be replaced.

Vast Wool Trade

Two-Thirds Of The World's Wool Produced In British Empire

Nearly one-half of the world's raw wool, a survey by the Empire Marketing Board shows, and more than two-thirds of the wool entering world-trade is produced within the British Empire.

Concerning Canadian production, the survey, a partly volume of 200 pages, says that appreciable progress has been made since 1924, though the high point reached just after the war has not since been attained. The sheep population is increasing steadily, and there is no reason to doubt a slow upward trend in wool production. Quebec and Ontario together are responsible for about one-half the Canadian clip, but their share has been gradually diminishing, with that of the Western Provinces increasing. The sheep population of the world is estimated at nearly 800,000,000, of which about one-third are in the Empire.

NEW DEEP WATER ROUTE FOR WESTERN WHEAT OPENED BY WORLD'S GREATEST GRAIN VESSEL

Most fittingly, the vital new link in the Great Lakes system, Canada's $128,000,000 Welland Canal, was opened, officially, by sending the greatest grain-carrier afloat, S.S. Lemoyne of Canada Steamship Lines, through the eight locks to Kingston with the biggest cargo of western wheat moved in two years, a load of grain over 150,000 bushels greater than had ever been shipped through the lower lakes in history. The Governor-General, delegates to the Imperial Conference, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett and members of the Cabinet all attended the opening ceremonies at Thorold.

Photos show: top left: Rt. Hon. Stanley Bruce, of Australia; Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin; His Excellency, Earl Beasborough, and Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett with two members of the Indian delegation at the canal ceremonies. Left centre: the giant 633-foot S.S. Lemoyne passing under one of the canal 120-foot electric lift bridges. ### THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

—BY—
MARGARET FIEDLER
Author of
"The Splendid Foe," "The Harlot of Far East,"
Hodder & Stoughton, Ltd., London.

"Oh, yes, she did. It was quite clear in the afternoon when she started—looked like being a lovely night!"

"But—but—"

Nick stammered and came to a halt. There was a look of bewilderment in his eyes.

"But who's she gone with?" he demanded at last. "I thought she said she intended stopping the night with Judith and Burke at their bungalow?"

"So she did," replied Blaise. "Why? Have you any objection?"—smiling.

"No," "Only"—Nick frowned—"I don't quite understand it. Judith isn't on the Moor?"

"Not on the Moor?" broke simultaneously from Lady Anne and Blaise.

"How do you know, Nick?" added the latter gravely.

"Why, because—Nick's face wore an expression of puzzled concern—"because I saw Judith in Newton Abbott late this evening."

Blaise leaned forward, a sudden look of concentration on his face.

"You saw Judith?" he repeated. "What time?"

"It must have been nearly eight o'clock. I was buzzing along in Jim Cresswell's car to catch the seven-forty-five up train, and I saw Judith with one of the Holfords—you know, those people from London—Jenn tell me the place the Holfords are stopping at. They didn't see me."

"You're quite certain? You've made no mistake?" said Blaise sharply.

"Of course I've made no mistake. Think I don't know Judy when I see her? But what's the meaning of it, Blaise?"

Tormarin rose to his feet, tossing the stump of his cigarette into the fire.

"I'm not sure," he said slowly. "But I'm going to find out. Madonna!"

Turning to his maid, Jenn, he said exactly what Judith said when she rang her up on the phone about this moonlight plan?"

"It wasn't Judith who rang up," replied Lady Anne, a faint misgiving showing itself in her face. "It was Geoffrey who gave the message."

"That settles it," he pressed his finger against the bell-push and held it there, and when Blaise came hurrying in response to the imperative summons, he said curtly: "Order me a fresh horse round at once—at once, mind. Tell Harding to saddle Orion, and to look sharp about it."

"Blaise—Lady Anne's obvious uneasiness had deepened to a sharp anxiety—"Blaise, what are you going to do? What—what are you afraid of?"

He looked her straight in the eyes. "I'm afraid of just what you are afraid of, madonna—of the devil let loose in Geoffrey Burke."

"And—and you're going to look for her—for Jean?"

"I'm going to find her," he corrected quietly.

Gravity had set its seal on all three faces. Each was conscious of the same fear—the fear they could not put into words.

"But why do you take Orion?" asked Nick. "The little thoroughbred mare—Redwing—would do the journey quicker and be lighter of foot over any marshy ground on the Moor."

"I can go when he chooses," returned Tormarin. "And he'll choose tonight. Redwing is a little bit of a thing, though she's game as a pebble. But she couldn't carry—two?"

The significance of Tormarin's choice of his big roan hunter, three-parts thoroughbred and standing sixteen hands, came home to Nick. He nodded without comment.

Silently he and Lady Anne accompanied Blaise into the hall. From the gravelled drive outside came the impatient stamping of Orion's iron-shod hoofs. Just at the last Lady Anne clung to her son's arm.

"You'll bring her back, Blaise?" she urged, a quiver in her voice.

"I'll bring her back, madonna," he answered quietly. "Don't worry."

A minute later he and the great roan horse were lost to sight in the bungalow. If, contrary to his expectation, the two who were left to watch and wait, shuffled and vague through the muffled mist like the sound of a distant drum.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Golden Hour

Tormarin had no very definite plan of campaign in his mind. He felt convinced that he should find Jean at the bungalow. If, contrary to his expectation, she were not there, nor anyone else to whom he could apply for information as to her whereabouts, he would have to consider what his next move must be.

Presently, through the thinning mist, Tormarin discerned the sharp turn of the track which branched off from the road towards the bungalow, and quickening Orion's pace, he was soon riding up the steep ascent, the moonlight throwing strange, confusing lights and shadows on the misty surface of the ground.

Suddenly, without the slightest warning, the roan halted and wheeled around, shying violently away from the off-side bank. A less good horseman might have been unseated, but as the big horse swerved Tormarin's knees gripped against the saddle like a vice, and with a steady word he faced him up the track again, then glanced keenly at the overhanging side of the roadway to discover what had frightened him.

A moment later he had jerked Orion to a sudden standstill, leapt to the ground and, with the reins over his arm, crossed the road swiftly to where, clad in some light stuff that glimmered strangely in the moonlight, lay a slender figure, propped against the bank.

"Blaise!" Jean's voice came weakly to his ears, but with a glad note in it of immense relief that bore witness to some previous strain.

In an instant Tormarin was kneeling beside her, one arm behind her shoulders. He helped her to her feet and she leaned against him, shivering. Feeling in his pockets, he produced a brandy flask and held it to her lips.

"Drink some of that!" he said. "Don't try to tell me anything yet!"

The raw spirit sent the chilled blood racing through her veins, putting new life into her. A faint touch of colour crept into her face.

"Oh, Blaise! I'm so glad you've come—so glad!" she said weakly.

"So am I," he returned grimly. "See, drink a little more brandy. Then you shall tell me all about it!"

At last, bit by bit, and in a strain, he gave him a somewhat disjointed account of what had occurred.

"I think I must have been stunned a little when I fell," she said. "I can't remember anything after stepping right off into space, it seemed, till—oh ages afterwards—I found myself lying here. And when I tried to stand, I found I'd hurt my ankle and that I couldn't put my foot to the ground. So—with a weak little attempt at laughter—"I—just sat down again!"

Blaise gave vent to a quick exclamation of concern.

"Oh, it's nothing, really," she reassured him hastily. "Only a strain. But I can't walk on it!" Then, suddenly clinging to him with a nervous dread: "Oh, take me away, Blaise—take me home!"

"I will. Don't be frightened—there's no need to be frightened any more, my Jean!"

"No," I know, I'm not afraid—now."

But he could hear the sob of utter nerve stress and exhaustion back of the brave words.

"Well, I'll take you home at once," he said cheerfully. "But, look here, you've no coat on and you're wet with mist!"

"I know. My coat's at the bungalow. I left in a hurry, you see!"—whimsically. The irrepressible Peterson element, game to the core, was reasserting itself.

"Well, we must fetch it—" "No! No!" Her voice rose in hasty protest. "I won't—I can't go back!"

"Then I'll go." "No! No!" Geoffrey might be there—"So much the better," grimly. "I'd like five minutes with you!" Tormarin's hand tightened fiercely on the hunt-grop he carried. "But he's more likely lost his way in the mist and fished up far enough away. Probably—with a short laugh—"he's still searching Dartmoor for you. You'd be on his mind a bit, you know! Wait here a minute while I ride up to the bungalow!"

But she clung to his arm. "No, no! Don't go! I—I can't be left alone—again."

The fear was coming back to her voice and Blaise, detecting it, abandoned the idea at once.

"All right, little Jean," he said reassuringly. "I won't leave you. Put my coat round you—stopping it off to it and fastened it with deft fingers. "And now I'm going to get you up on to Orion and we'll go home."

"I shall never get up there," she observed, with a glance at the roan's great shoulders looming through the mist. "I shan't be able to spring—I can only stand on one foot, remember."

Blaise laughed cheerily. "Don't worry. Just remain quite still—standing on your one foot, you poor little lame duck!—and I'll do the rest!"

She felt his arms release its clasp of her, and a moment later he had swung his leg across the horse and was back in the saddle again. With a word to the big beast he dropped the reins on to his neck, and turning towards Jean, where she stood like a slim, pale ghost in the moonlight, he leaned down to her from the saddle.

"Can you manage to come a step nearer?" he asked.

She hobbled forward painfully. "Now?" he said.

And then Jean found herself resting against the curve of Blaise's arm, with the roan's powerful shoulders, firm and solid as a rock beneath her.

"All right?" queried Blaise, gathering up the reins in his left hand. "Lean well back against my shoulder. There, how's that?"

"It's like an arm-chair." He laughed.

"I am afraid you won't say the same by the end of the journey," he commented ruefully.

It was the evening of the following day, Jean, tucked up on a couch and with her strained ankle comfortably bandaged, had been reluctantly furnishing Blaise with the particulars of her experience at the bungalow. She had been very unwilling to confide the whole story to him, fearing the consequence of the Tormarin temper as applied to Burke. A violent quarrel between the two men could do no good, she reflected, and would only be fraught with unpleasant results to all concerned—probably, in the end, securing a painful publicity for the whole affair.

"And—and that was all," wound up Jean. "And anyway, Blaise"—a little anxiously—"it's over now, and I'm none the worse except for the acquisition of a little more worldly wisdom and a strained ankle."

"Yes, really mine. My initial mistake was in confusing the false fire with the true. It wasn't not love I had for Nesta. And I found it out when it was too late. We were poles apart in everything, and instead of trying to make it easier for her, trying to understand her and to lead her into our ways of looking at things, I only stormed at her. It roused all that was worst in me to see her trailing our name in the dust, throwing her dignity to the winds, craving for nothing other than amusement and excitement. I'm not trying to excuse myself. There was no excuse for me. In my way, I was as culpable and foolish as she. And when the crash came—when I found her deliberately entertaining in my house against my express orders, a man who ought to have been kicked out of any decent society, why, I let go. The Tormarin temper had its way with me. I shall never forgive myself for that. I frightened her, terrified her. I think I must have been half mad. And then well, you know what followed. She rushed away and, before anyone could find her or help her, she had killed herself—thrown herself into the Seine. Quite what happened between leaving her and her death we were never able to find out. Apparently since her marriage with me, her sister had gone to Paris, unknown to her, and had taken a situation as 'dame de compagnie' to some Frenchwoman, and Nesta, though she followed from Italy to Paris, failed to find her there. At least that is what Margherita Valdi told me in the letter announcing Nesta's death. Then she must have lost heart. So you see, morally I am responsible for that poor, reckless child's death."

"His face clouded.

"Because of all that had happened in the past. You know—you have been told about Nesta—"

"Ah, yes! Don't talk about it, Blaise," she broke in hastily, sensing his distasteful recoil from the topic.

"I think we must a little, dear," he responded gravely. "You see, Nesta was not all to blame—nor even very much, as I'm sure—with a little half-tender smile—"my mother tried hard to make you believe."

He nodded vigorously.

"She did. And I expect she was perfectly right."

He shook his head.

"No," he answered. "The fault was really mine. My initial mistake was in confusing the false fire with the true. It wasn't not love I had for Nesta. And I found it out when it was too late. We were poles apart in everything, and instead of trying to make it easier for her, trying to understand her and to lead her into our ways of looking at things, I only stormed at her. I used to take it out and have a look at it. It was always quite effective in thrusting me back into my proper place in the scheme of things—that is, outside any other woman's life."

There was an inextinguishable bitterness in his tones, and Jean drew a little nearer to him, her heart overflowing with compassion. He looked down at her and smiled a thought ironically.

"But now—you've beaten me!" His lips brushed her hair. "I'm glad to be beaten, beloved. . . . I knew, that day at Montevan, what you might come to mean to me. And I intended never to see you again. But just to take that one day for remembrance. I felt that, having made such an utter hash of things, having spoiled one woman's life and been, indirectly, the cause of her death, I was not fit to hold another woman's happiness in my hands."

"I'm glad you thought better of it," she observed.

"I don't know, even now, that I'm right in letting you love me—"

"You can't stop me," she objected. He smiled.

"I don't think I would if I could—now."
